

ABSTRACT

TIME-RESOLVED X-RAY SCATTERING FROM WARM MATERIALS

Roger Falcone

UC Berkeley

I will discuss experiments that measure the structure of transiently excited matter using short x-ray pulses generated at a third generation synchrotron. I will also discuss the potential and challenges for related experiments using 100 fs x-ray pulses generated using slicing techniques, and future x-ray FELS.